Abstracts for the February 14 Kansas Undergraduate Research Day

We are now accepting 250 word abstracts for the February 14 Kansas Undergraduate Research day at the Capitol!!!!

We are pleased to announce the launch of the 2018 Undergraduate Research Day at the Capitol competition. Click on the link below to view more information.

Deadline: Monday, January 22, 2018

Award Cycle: 2017 – 2018

Discipline/Subject Area: Any

The Kansas Undergraduate Research Day at the Capitol event is an opportunity for students to present their research experiences with state lawmakers in Topeka tentatively scheduled for Wednesday, February 14, 2018.

This event will showcase the work of up to 40 Kansas undergraduate students representing each of the state's eight public 4-year institutions. The purpose of this event is to demonstrate the unique opportunities undergraduate students have to participate with faculty members in research at all state institutions. This event will also emphasize higher education's role in developing educated citizens and preparing a workforce with the necessary skills to further the economic growth of the state.

Undergraduate students who have been significantly involved in the research enterprise of the university either with their own project or through meaningful involvement with a faculty project are desired as participants.

To qualify for this event, participants must:

- be undergraduates during the 2017-2018 academic year
- have completed research under the guidance of a Kansas 4-year public institution faculty mentor
- follow the methodology of the appropriate academic discipline
- be of sufficient quality to be presented at a professional academic meeting
- have the skills, resources, and capacity to produce a professional academic poster
- agree to undergo presentation training and rehearse their presentations prior to the Capitol event

Participants should be able to convey their experience and enthusiasm to state representatives, senators, and other state officials in a poster session. Projects from a broad range of disciplines are encouraged - especially posters that relate to the state of Kansas and issues important to the state legislature (e.g. education, health, agriculture, aviation, biotechnology, energy, transportation, manufacturing, environment, and social services). Up to 5 projects will be selected from each institution.

Lunch and transportation will be provided. The event will take place on the first floor of the Capitol Rotunda from 10 am to 1 pm. The public is invited to attend. Selected participants will receive additional information regarding the event.

Submissions are accepted from student teams, however only two students from the team will be able to go to the Capitol. One designated student should be listed as the Principal Investigator. The entire research team will be recognized in the program booklet and related materials.

This event will not be an adjudicated poster competition with prizes. All participants will be recognized equally for the honor of participating in this event. Helpful resources for creating posters may be found at <http://www.fhsu.edu/academic/gradschl/ure/URE-Poster-Tips/>.

Email Encryption

Did you know you can encrypt Outlook emails by putting [ENCRYPT] anywhere in the subject? Keep reading to learn more about email encryption!

What is encryption?

Encryption is a secret code that only the sender and intended recipient are able to decipher.

The US Postal Service is a great analogy for email. Regular email that hasn't been encrypted is like sending a post card - everyone that handles the post card can read all of the information it contains. Encrypted email is like sending a sealed envelope. Everyone handling the envelope can see the information on the outside of the envelope, but they can't see the information inside.

What types of information need to be encrypted?

Sensitive information must be encrypted at rest (when stored on a computer, server, "The Cloud," flash drives, etc) and while in-transit (when moving across a network or the Internet). To go back to our Postal Service analogy, if you wouldn't put it on a postcard, you shouldn't put it in an unencrypted email.

You can read our Data Classification Policy here:

<http://www.fhsu.edu/policies/Data-Classification-Policy/index.pdf>.

The short version is, encryption is needed when sending:

- Financial information, including credit card numbers and bank account numbers
- Personal identification numbers, including Social Security Number, passport number, and driver's license number
- FERPA-protected student data
- HIPAA-protected medical information

Is Outlook email encrypted?

Sometimes. Outlook email is always encrypted at rest. It is sometimes encrypted in-transit, but not every part of an email can be encrypted.

Outlook email through Office 365 uses what's known as opportunistic TLS encryption when sending email. This means it will attempt to establish a secure, encrypted connection with the server receiving the email. If the receiving server doesn't support encryption, Outlook will fall back to unencrypted email. To continue with our letter/postcard analogy, Office 365 will ask the receiving server if it has a letter opener. If it does, Office 365 will seal the message in an envelope. If it doesn't, Office 365 will send the message as a postcard. The person sending the email isn't told if an envelope or postcard is used.

So when is Outlook email encrypted?

It's definitely encrypted when sent internally from one FHSU Outlook mailbox to another. There are other times when it's encrypted, but it's not easy to tell if an email will be encrypted before sending it. Remember that FHSU Outlook email addresses end in @fhsu.edu. Addresses that end in @mail.fhsu.edu go to Gmail, not Outlook.

What parts of an email are NEVER encrypted?

To continue with the Postal Service analogy, the information on the outside of the envelope must be visible so the Postal Service knows where to send the letter. From address, To, Cc, Bcc, Subject, and filenames of attachments cannot be encrypted (these are on the outside of the envelope). The email body and the contents of attachments can be encrypted (these are on the inside of the envelope).

How can I make sure an email is encrypted?

You can encrypt any email by simply adding [ENCRYPT] anywhere in the subject line. If the email is sent to another fhsu.edu Outlook address, it will be automatically decrypted for the person on the other side (they don't need to take any extra action). If the email is sent outside of our Outlook environment, the person on the other end will need to login with a Microsoft account to view the email.

It is recommended that you use the [ENCRYPT] tag for all emails that contain sensitive information, even if they're only going to FHSU Outlook addresses. It's a good habit to establish, and it protects the data if someone forwards it outside of our Outlook environment.

Remember that the email's subject and the filenames of attachments can't be encrypted, so they should never contain any sensitive data.

Are people really reading my unencrypted email?

Yes. Yes, they are.

But can't the government, foreign spies, or hackers from outer space break through the encryption and read my email?

Maybe, but that doesn't mean we shouldn't make an effort to keep information private and secure.

Questions? Call or email Jessica States.
